

Strategic Income Portfolio, Series 106

Investment Objective

The Strategic Income Portfolio, Series 106 (Trust) seeks to provide current income and the potential for capital appreciation by investing in common shares of closed-end investment companies (closed-end funds) that are considered to be income funds.

Key Considerations

- Attractive Income Potential: Investors seeking income and willing to assume the additional risks involved may find opportunity in closed-end funds, which have historically paid a consistent and competitive dividend. The historical annual dividend distribution is $0.7645,¹ as of 7.3.2019.
- Strategic Allocation: The Trust seeks to provide diversification² to an investor's overall portfolio as well as exposure to income-producing asset classes. The portfolio construction seeks to allocate approximately a third³ each of the closed-end funds to equity, high yield, and investment grade securities.
- Significant Discounts: Guggenheim favors funds that are trading at a discount relative to their peers and relative to their long-term average, which may help investors realize enhanced total returns.

Past performance is no guarantee of future results. There is no guarantee that these trends and projections will continue or come to fruition and they are subject to change.

² Diversification does not ensure a profit nor eliminate the risk of loss.

³ The underlying CEF holdings consist of 34.44% High Yield, 33.91% Equity, and 31.65% Investment Grade Securities, as of 7.1.2019.

Strategically Balanced Income Potential

Guggenheim believes investors are seeking consistent income and diversification. To provide a potential solution, Guggenheim created the Strategic Income Portfolio, which seeks to provide current income and the potential for capital appreciation by investing in income-oriented closed-end funds (CEFs). As part of its balanced approach, the portfolio team allocates approximately a third³ of the portfolio to equity, high yield, and investment grade securities. However, based on market conditions these allocations may vary.

As seen in the chart below, various asset classes of CEFs offer unique yield, performance and risk profiles. By diversifying between equity and fixed-income CEFs in a single portfolio, investors may find the potential for the yield they seek, as well as total return and less overall portfolio volatility when compared to investing in a single asset class of CEFs.

A BLEND OF CLOSED-END FUNDS OFFERS THE POTENTIAL FOR YIELD, TOTAL RETURN AND DIVERSIFIED RISK

Past performance is no guarantee of future results. The chart is for illustrative purposes only and it is not meant to forecast, imply or guarantee the future performance of any Guggenheim Investments product. There is no guarantee that these trends and projections will continue or come to fruition and they are subject to change. Standard deviation is a statistical measure of the historical volatility of an investment, usually computed using the most recent 60-monthly returns and then annualized. More generally, it is a measure of the extent to which numbers are spread around their average. The higher the number, the more volatility is to be expected. Securities in which the Trust invests may differ from those in the Indices. The Trust will not try to replicate the performance of the Indices and will not necessarily invest any substantial portion of its assets in securities in the Indices. Indices are unmanaged and it is not possible to invest directly in the Indices. The chart shows Morningstar U.S.-Listed Closed-End Funds Peer Group Indices which are defined on back page. Early redemption of units will still cause payment of the DSC. However, an initial sales charge, which is equal to the difference between the maximum S/C and the sum of any remaining deferred S/C charges and C&D, will be charged if the price paid for units exceeds $10 per unit.

RISK CONSIDERATIONS: As with all investments, you may lose some or all of your investment in the Trust. No assurance can be given that the Trust's investment objective will be achieved. The Trust also might not perform as well as you expect. This can happen for reasons such as these: • Securities prices can be volatile. • The Trust includes CEFs, which are subject to various risks, including management's ability to meet the CEF's investment objective and to manage CEF's portfolio during periods of market turmoil and as investors' perceptions regarding CEFs or their underlying investments change. CEFs are not redeemable at the option of the shareholder and they may trade in the market at a discount to their net asset value. CEFs may also employ the use of leverage which increases risk and volatility. • The CEFs are subject to annual fees and expenses, including a management fee. Unitholders of the Trust will bear these fees in addition to the fees and expenses of the Trust. • The value of the fixed-income securities in the CEFs will generally fall if interest rates, in general, rise. Typically, fixed-income securities with longer periods before maturity are more sensitive to interest rate changes. The Trust may be subject to greater risk of rising interest rates than would normally be the case due to the current period of historically low rates. • A CEF or an issuer of securities held by a CEF may be unwilling or unable to make principal payments and/or to declare distributions in the future, may call a security before its stated maturity, or may reduce the level of distributions declared. A CEF or an issuer may suspend dividends during the life of the Trust. This may result in a reduction in the value of your units. • The financial condition of a CEF or an issuer of securities held by a CEF may worsen, resulting in a reduction in the value of your units. This may occur at any point in time, including during the primary offering period. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust invest in securities that are rated below investment-grade and are considered to be "junk" securities, speculative and are subject to greater market and credit risks, and accordingly, the risk of nonpayment or default is higher than with investment-grade securities. Such securities may be more sensitive to interest rate changes and more likely to receive early returns of principal in falling rate environments. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust may invest in securities that are rated as investment-grade by only one rating agency; such split-rated securities may have more speculative characteristics and are subject to a greater risk of default than securities rated as investment-grade by more than one rating agency. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust invest in foreign securities, which presents additional risk. Foreign risk is the risk that foreign securities will be more volatile than U.S. securities due to such factors as adverse economic, currency, political, social or regulatory developments in a country. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust may invest in securities issued by companies headquartered or incorporated in countries considered to be emerging markets, which may be exposed to greater volatility and market risk, including the possibility of investment and trading limitations, liquidity concerns, delays and disruptions in settlement transactions, political uncertainties and dependence on international trade and development assistance. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust invest in common stocks. Common stock prices fluctuate for several reasons including changes in investors' perceptions of the financial condition of an issuer, changes in the general condition of the relevant stock market, such as the market volatility recently exhibited, or when political or economic events affect the issuers. Common stock prices may also be particularly sensitive to rising interest rates, as the cost of capital rises and borrowing costs increase. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust may invest in securities issued by small- and mid-cap companies, which may have limited product lines, markets or financial resources and may be more vulnerable to adverse general market or economic developments. These securities customarily involve more investment risk than securities of large-capitalization companies. • Economic conditions may lead to limited liquidity and greater volatility. • Share prices or distributions on the securities in the Trust may decline during the life of the Trust. • Inflation may lead to a decrease in the value of assets or income from investments. Please see the Trust prospectus for more complete risk information.
