

Diversified Income Wave Portfolio, Series 76

Investment Objective

The Diversified Income Wave Portfolio, Series 76 (Trust) seeks to provide current income and the potential for capital appreciation by investing in common shares of closed-end investment companies (closed-end funds).

Key Considerations

- Attractive Income Potential: Investors seeking income may find opportunity in closed-end funds which have historically paid consistent and above-average dividends. The Trust seeks to provide an attractive level of income. The historical annual dividend distribution is $1.0202,<sup>1</sup> as of 3.6.2020.
- Opportunity for Discounts: Among other criteria, the closed-end funds within the portfolio are selected based on a discount to the net asset value, creating an opportunity for capital appreciation potential.
- Diversification*: The portfolio offers exposure to a variety of closed-end fund asset classes, which can potentially help lower some risk during periods of increased market volatility.

Past performance is no guarantee of future results.

Closed-End Fund Asset Class Allocation

The Trust invests in a diversified portfolio of closed-end funds containing securities of different asset classes.*

Attractive Income from a Mix of Closed-End Fund Asset Classes

The addition of Guggenheim's Diversified Income Wave Portfolio to an overall balanced portfolio may offer investors the potential for both high levels of distribution income and increased diversification. The Trust invests in shares of multiple closed-end funds with high-current income investment strategies and is tactically allocated across a broad range of asset classes that Guggenheim believes may help achieve strong risk-adjusted performance.

The chart below shows the annualized distribution yields of the top five asset classes held within the portfolio, which have, on average over the last five years, generated higher income compared to the average yield of all U.S.-listed closed-end funds. Exposure to a diverse basket of closed-end funds may help to provide investors with a steady income stream especially during periods of market volatility.

See Risk Considerations on next page for risk associated with investing in closed-end funds.

For unit prices other than $10, percentages of C&D fees, and DSCs will vary but in no event will the maximum sales charge (S/C) exceed the total S/C. Early redemption of units will still cause payment of the DSC. However, an initial sales charge, which is equal to the difference between the maximum S/C and the sum of any remaining deferred S/C charges and C&D, will be charged if the price paid for units exceeds $10 per unit.

RISK CONSIDERATIONS: As with all investments, you may lose some or all of your investment in the Trust. No assurance can be given that the Trust's investment objective will be achieved.

The Trust also might not perform as well as you expect. This can happen for reasons such as these: • Securities prices can be volatile. • Share prices or dividend rates on the securities in the Trust may decline during the life of the Trust. • The Trust includes Closed-End Funds (CEFs), which are subject to various risks, including management's ability to meet the CEF's investment objective and to manage the CEF's portfolio during periods of market turmoil and as investors' perceptions regarding CEFs or their underlying investments change. CEFs are not redeemable at the option of the shareholder and they may trade in the market at a discount to their net asset value. CEFs may also employ the use of leverage which increases risk and volatility. • The CEFs are subject to annual fees and expenses, including a management fee. Unitholders of the Trust will bear these fees in addition to the fees and expenses of the Trust. • The value of the fixed-income securities in the CEFs will generally fall if interest rates, in general, rise. Typically, fixed-income securities with longer periods before maturity are more sensitive to interest rate changes. The Trust may be subject to greater risk of rising interest rates than would normally be the case due to the current period of historically low rates. • A CEF or an issuer of securities held by a CEF may be unwilling or unable to make principal payments and/or to declare distributions in the future, may call a security before its stated maturity, or may reduce the level of distributions declared. Issuers may suspend dividends during the life of the Trust. This may result in a reduction in the value of your units. • Economic conditions may lead to limited liquidity and greater volatility. • The financial condition of a CEF or an issuer of securities held by a CEF may worsen, resulting in a reduction in the value of your units. This may occur at any point in time, including during the primary offering period. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust invest in securities that are rated below investment-grade and are considered to be "junk" securities, speculative and are subject to greater market and credit risks, and accordingly, the risk of non-payment or default is higher than with investment-grade securities; such securities may be more sensitive to interest rate changes and more likely to receive early returns of principal in falling rate environments. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust may invest in securities that are rated as investment-grade by only one rating agency; such split-rated securities may have more speculative characteristics and are subject to a greater risk of default than securities rated as investment-grade by more than one rating agency. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust invest in foreign securities, which presents additional risk. Foreign risk is the risk that foreign securities will be more volatile than U.S. securities due to such factors as adverse economic, currency, political, social or regulatory developments in a country. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust invest in securities issued by companies headquartered or incorporated in countries considered to be emerging markets, which may be exposed to greater volatility and market risk, including the possibility of investment and trading limitations, liquidity concerns, delays and disruptions in settlement transactions, political uncertainties and dependence on international trade and development assistance. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust invest in common stocks, which represent a proportional share of ownership in a company. Common stock prices fluctuate for several reasons including changes in investors' perceptions of the financial condition of an issuer, changes in the general condition of the relevant stock market, such as the market volatility recently exhibited, or when political or economic events affect the issuers and may also be sensitive to rising interest rates, as the cost of capital rises and borrowing costs increase. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust invest in convertible securities, which generally offer lower interest or dividend yields than non-convertible fixed-income securities of similar credit quality because of the potential for capital appreciation. The market values of convertible securities tend to decline as interest rates increase and, conversely, to increase as interest rates decline. A convertible security's market value also tends to reflect the market price of the common stock of the issuing company, particularly when that stock price is greater than the convertible security's "conversion price." Convertible securities fall below debt obligations of the same issuer in order of preference or priority in the event of a liquidation and are typically unrated or rated lower than such debt obligations. • Certain CEFs held by the Trust may invest in securities issued by small- and mid-cap companies, which may have limited product lines, markets or financial resources and may be more vulnerable to adverse general market or economic developments. These securities customarily involve more investment risk than securities of large-capitalization companies. • The Trust may be susceptible to potential risks through breaches in cybersecurity. • Inflation may lead to a decrease in the value of assets or income from investments. Please see the Trust prospectus for more complete risk information.
